PREMISE

THE WRITER'S SOLILOQUY

It seems the time has arrived for this writer to make a comment and clear a few statements circulated among some of the membership.

A few members have unjustly stated the ideas of the two copyrighted books, "Let There Be Light" and "He Belongs to the Ages", were Beulah H. Malone's own ideas and not the founder's, Robert Morris.

I wish as a writer, I could claim this untruthful statement. It would be the highest compliment a writer could receive, or be given.

However, I am unable to claim the honor, because the honor I received as a chosen one, is a Divine understanding wisdom of the Order.

The privilege awarded me for this truthful honor is that I hold the beautiful and meaningful lessons of the Order of the Eastern Star. Its teachings have brought gratitude to me in a tragic world of life.

It was a "Miracle", a Divine Blessing that I was given the privilege to copy, to edit and copyright as owner the material from his manuscripts. This I have done for an educational purpose for the members of an Order whose founder had been trained and blessed by a gift of his Heavenly Father; that his name might be carved in the Marble of God, his Creator.

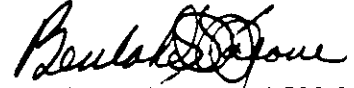

I can only claim the "Miracle" of handling the yellowed, crumbly original Work, hidden away nearly a century, through plagiarism, by those whom he had trusted while making a deeper research.

I shall always be most grateful to Sister Annie M. Pond, deceased, Grand Secretary of the New York Grand Jurisdiction who trusted me in wisdom and understanding and blessed me with the privileged mission. This mission was to give this generation the real founder's original Order, that they might build a "Body Temple Cathedral", opening doors to a more easy and abundant pathway of life.

Sister Annie M. Pond's work and writings, under Brother Robert Macoy, who was given the honor of Grand Patron, will also sustain this writer. Although we are two Orders, we are climbing a mountain of education, one on one side, and one on the other side. By holding each individual equal, when we meet on the top of this mountain, our teachings will be united. It all comes from the foundation of the Builder of God's Holy Word.

Lovingly and fraternally,

Past Grand Matron of Oklahoma
Order of the Eastern Star
